ASGLE Bulletin

Volume 26, Numbers 1-2

President's Message

It will be a pleasure to see you all at the SCS-AIA meeting in Chicago in early January and especially at the 4th North American Congress of Greek and Latin Epigraphy, to be held at the Institute for the Study of Ancient Cultures (ISAC, formerly the Oriental Institute) at the University of Chicago on January 8-9, 2024.

For NACGLE IV we have an exciting programme with an excellent range of papers in both Greek and Latin epigraphy, and there are also some sessions devoted to new methods for epigraphic research. It will be a pleasure to welcome Alain Bresson (Professor emeritus, University of Chicago and Université de Bordeaux-Montaigne) as our keynote speaker. On the Monday evening he will give a talk on "When Their Kings Left: Greek Epigraphy in Western Asia after the Fall of Hellenistic Monarchies". This promises to be a fascinating exploration of the Greek epigraphic habit after the fall of the Hellenistic monarchies in Bactria, Arachosia and Greater Armenia, as they developed under the Parthian and Sasanian kingdoms. There will be a reception following the lecture, fully included in the registration fee. I would like to thank most sincerely the Programme Committee and the local Organizing Committee for all their work in preparing for this exciting congress.

I would urge you to register for the conference AS SOON AS POSSIBLE and by 8 December 2023 at the very latest. A detailed program and information about hotel accommodations and reservations appear later in this issue of this Bulletin; full details are also available on the ASGLE website at:

Deadline ExtendedCALL FOR POSTERS*Fourth North American Congress of Greek and Latin Epigraphy (NACGLE IV)

University of Chicago, January 8-9, 2024

Epigraphy and Public Life in the Graeco-Roman World

The Organizing Committee of the upcoming Fourth North American Congress of Greek and Latin Epigraphy (NACGLE) is pleased to invite individual proposals for poster presentations. Posters may be devoted to the importance of epigraphy for our understanding of any of the following topics: civic, political and legal activity; economic production and exchange; social hierarchies and social mobility; rural communities and agrarian life; military communities. Posters devoted to discussions of new inscriptions and new techniques for reading epigraphic texts and analyzing inscriptions in bulk will also be welcome.

Proposals should be between 350 and 500 words (bibliography excluded) and be anonymous. Please submit your proposal by email attachment in PDF or Word document format by Monday 27 November 2023 to NACGLE2024@gmail.com. Please include the words "NACGLE IV POSTER" in the subject line of the email.

Proposals will be reviewed anonymously by members of the congress Organizing Committee, and the results of the review process will be made known to potential participants soon thereafter. Please note that those whose posters are accepted will have to make their own arrangements for printing and bringing their posters to Chicago (there is a FedEx Office Print shop at 1315 E 57th St., within easy walking distance of the conference location at the ISAC and the conference hotel, The Sophy, 1411 East 53rd St.).

To submit a proposal for a poster, it is not necessary to be a current member of ASGLE, but we hope that all those whose posters are accepted for presentation in Chicago will join ASGLE, if they are not already members.

2025 SCS Annual Meeting
Calls for Papers

The American Society of Greek and Latin Epigraphy will be teaming up with the American Society of Papyrologists to offer two joint panels at the 156th Annual Meeting of the Society for Classical Studies, January 2-5, 2025, in Philadelphia. The aim of this collaboration is to promote collaboration and interaction between papyrologists and epigraphists on topics of mutual interest to both.

Joint Panel 1:Organization, Display, and Transfer of Knowledge

A Joint Panel Sponsored by the American Society of Greek and Latin Epigraphy and the American Society of Papyrologists

Organized by James Sickinger (Florida State University) and Christelle Fischer-Bovet
(University of Southern California)

This panel aims to explore how epigraphical and papyrological documents organize, display, and disseminate knowledge and information in the ancient societies of the Mediterranean and the Near East. While, on a most basic level, epigraphical sources serve to display information and papyrological ones allow for its transfer and dissemination, both partake in its organization and can also serve multiple functions. Our two scholarly associations seek to bring together papers addressing specific aspects of these broad problematics from either papyrological or epigraphical perspectives, or both, to offer a more nuanced understanding of variations, influences, and local adaptations.

We invite abstracts that engage with – but are not limited to – administrative or legal practices, whether institutional or private; economic and accounting procedures and issues of transparency; memory, local history and archives; the transfer or display of cultural and religious knowledge and values; the relationship between archives, material culture, and the intersection between different material supports, i.e., what types of knowledge or information are displayed or archived, how and where, and with what sorts of outcomes or limitations? In sum, we envision inquiries that explore how the perspectives of epigraphy and papyrology interact: do they complement or contradict one another?

Papers should deploy evidence preserved either epigraphically (on stone, metal, or other durable material) or on papyri, ostraka, or wooden tablets, and written in Greek, Latin, Coptic, demotic Egyptian, Arabic, or other pertinent languages. Papers engaging with a combination of materials (e.g., inscriptions and papyri) or take a comparative approach, as well as multi-authored papers pairing epigraphers and papyrologists, are also welcome.

Please send abstracts following the SCS guidelines (see the SCS Guidelines for Authors of Abstracts) by email, as a Word or PDF e-mail attachment, to James Sickinger at jsicking [at] fsu [dot] edu or Christelle Fischer-Bovet at fischerb [at] usc [dot] edu by February 15, 2024. Abstracts should be a maximum of 500 words (excluding bibliography) and suitable for a 20- minute presentation. Ensure that the abstracts are anonymous. The organizers will review all submissions anonymously, and their decision will be communicated to the authors of abstracts by mid-April, with enough time that those whose abstracts are not chosen can participate in the individual abstract submission process for the upcoming SCS meeting. Please note that authors submitting abstracts must be SCS members in good standing and will need to register for the 2025 meeting.

Joint Panel 2:

New Directions in Papyrology and Epigraphy in the 21st Century

Joint Panel Sponsored by the American Society of Greek and Latin Epigraphy and the American Society of Papyrologists

Organized by James Sickinger (Florida State University) and Christelle Fischer-Bovet (University of Southern California)

The American Society of Greek and Latin Epigraphy and the American Society of Papyrologists both represent disciplines that are unique for providing new primary sources for study of the ancient world. Both societies also wish to promote dialogues between these two fields, and we therefore jointly invite proposals for papers reflecting the ongoing contributions of papyrological and epigraphic material by addressing recently discovered epigraphic or papyrological texts, novel reinterpretations of older documents, or new methodological approaches to the study of epigraphic or papyrological texts (or both). Papers may address individual texts or groups of texts, as well as similarities or differences arising from the study of documents on different materials.

Papers should deploy evidence preserved either epigraphically (on stone, metal, or other durable material) or on papyri, ostraka, or wooden tablets (in Greek, Latin, Coptic, demotic Egyptian, Arabic, or other pertinent languages). Papers that engage with a combination of materials (e.g., inscriptions and papyri) or take a comparative approach, as well as multi-authored papers pairing epigraphers and papyrologists, are also welcome.

Please send abstracts that follow SCS guidelines (see the SCS Guidelines for Authors of Abstracts) by email, as a Word or PDF e-mail attachment, to James Sickinger at jsicking [at] fsu [dot] edu or Christelle Fischer-Bovet at fischerb [at] usc [dot] edu by February 15, 2024. Abstracts should be a maximum of 500 words (excluding bibliography) and suitable for a 20-minute presentation. Ensure that abstracts are anonymous. The organizers will review all submissions anonymously, and decisions will be communicated to authors of abstracts by mid-April, with enough time for those whose abstracts are not chosen to submit in the individual abstract submission process for the upcoming SCS meeting. Please note that authors submitting abstracts must be SCS members in good standing and will need to register for the 2025 meeting.
